Walking With My Angels

Although it appears that I'm alone, I'm really not. A number of angels are always with me.

One of my favorite things to do is to take a walk in the park. Although it appears that I'm alone, I'm really not. A number of angels are always with me. I don't remember when I first started having conversations with my angels, but it was at least ten years ago while taking a walk. I started by mentally asking the universe a question and was surprised to get an answer back. I continued on a sporadic basis and always got answers, but not always the answers I was expecting. It didn't take me long to realize it was my angels who were speaking.

The park I like to go to most has a sidewalk surrounding it. A normal paced walk takes me about a half hour from start to finish. I begin with a prayer of gratefulness to God, Archangel Michael and Archangel Rafael, all my other angels, spirit guides, runners and helpers. Sometimes I won't ask any questions and will just walk, appreciating my surroundings. Other times I will silently talk about a challenge in my life. For instance, I might say..."My sister recently sent me an email that when she dies she's donating her house to charity. I am disappointed because I thought she would will it to me, her only family." An angel will then respond saying "Your sister can do whatever she wants with her house. It's not your due. It may not be right, but get over it." I'm always satisfied with the angels' advice as I know it is based on the truth.

Like humans, the angels have different personalities. One angel in particular is very sarcastic. I kid with her a little when she talks to me. She's been with me the entire time I've been communicating with angels. There are softer, sweeter angels too. I don't have names for any of them, but that doesn't seem important as their voices tell me who they are. I know it's an angel responding to me and not my own
